Elaine,

I don't know who is responsible for releasing the latest districting map sample to the media (Outzen's blog) before it was sent to Commission members, but it was a violation of correct protocol and I hereby register my objection and complaint. Please forward this to the appropriate parties.

Thank you.

David,

I appreciate your wishing to accommodate a media request. However, the work was requested by the Districting Commission, not Mr. Outzen. To send the information to him was out of order and a discourtesy to us. The proper procedure would have been to inform him that the map had not yet been distributed to the Commission and to refer his request to the Commission Chair.

At our meeting next week I will ask that the Commission take up the issue of dissemination of our work materials to the media.

Best regards,
Diane

Mrs. Mack,

The "Sample C" map was forwarded by Michael Hardin of my staff via e-mail to the Ms. Mager at 1:34 pm yesterday. Several hours later, I received a phone call from Mr. Outzen inquiring about a "second/alternative map" and requested a copy, which I sent to him via e-mail. I forwarded a copy of my e-mail response to Mr. Outzen to Mr. Messer, Ms. Mager, and commission chair Ritchie as a courtesy.

Thanks,
David

David,

Please accept my apology for the statement contained in my previous email. Upon a quick review of public records law (and a rereading of your email citing the sequence of events), I understand now that you were officially obligated to respond to Mr. Outzen's request promptly and in good faith and you did so. You personally were not at fault.

The question that remains is who took it upon him/herself to put a bug in Mr. Outzen's ear that there was something to be requested.

Please understand the difficulty and embarrassment that prematurely published materials may cause for an appointed (or elected) official who has not had access to the material and has to admit to a questioning constituent, "I'm sorry but I didn't know that map had been completed and I haven't seen it."

Thank you for your understanding of my position, as I now understand yours.

Best regards,
Diane

Mrs. Mack,

Thanks for sharing your opinion on proper procedures for public officials responding to requests for information. That said, I don't intend to continue this dialogue over e-mail, but will be happy to address it at the next meeting.
