It's frustrating seeing posts like this regularly when we are a brick and mortar shelter with tons of space at the moment. Our intakes are still closed due to the fact that we don't have funds to care for all the animals properly, especially if we end up with more than we have right now. So while tons of other animals die, we just have to sit and wait and hope shit gets fixed. People wonder why we're mad... this is one of the biggest reasons why.

Compassion Fatigue in Animal Shelter/Rescue Workers

1h

Southern shelters, how are y'all dealing right now? We euthanized 15 dogs last week and are already full again. Transports keep getting cancelled.
